Mission records held at the Northern Territory Archives Service

The Northern Territory Archives Service (NTAS) holds many records relating to churches and missions including the collections of the missionary organisations themselves. The Uniting Church in Australia and the Church Missionary Society have donated a large quantity of material to the NTAS. The Archives holdings do not include any records from the Roman Catholic Church although some prominent missionaries and members of the Catholic Church have lodged their collections with the NTAS.

This leaflet details the records of the Church Missionary Society and the Uniting Church in Australia. Both these organisations ran homes and missions in various centres across the Northern Territory.

Church Missionary Society

The Church Missionary Society of Australia was formed in 1916 from several Church Missionary Associations in Australian States. See the Church Missionary Society of Australia website for more information: <https://www.cms.org.au/about-us/history/>

The Church Missionary Society ran missions in the Northern Territory at the following locations: Angurugu, Emerald River, Umbakumba on Groote Eylandt and Oenpelli (Gunbalanya); Roper River (Ngukurr); Rose River (Numbulwar).

Obtaining access to Church Missionary Society records

The archives listed above are all under the control of the Church Missionary Society. Researchers can refine their selection using series lists available at NTAS. Once this has been achieved, it is necessary to obtain permission for access to the records from the Society. It is the responsibility of the researcher to obtain permission from the Society directly. Contact details are as follows:

Church Missionary Society (CMS)

Federal Secretary

PO Box 20095, World Square, NSW 2002

SYDNEY NSW 2000

Phone: (02) 9284 6777

Email: cmsa.archives@cms.org.au

Website: www.cms.org.au

The Church Missionary Society, Sydney Office will advise the NTAS once access has been granted. Researchers should then organise a time to visit the NTAS to examine the chosen archives

Please note that not all Church Missionary Society records are held in the Northern Territory. Some are held in Sydney. Check with the CMS Sydney office for more details.

Uniting Church in Australia

The Uniting Church in Australia was formed in 1977 and was made from a union of the Presbyterian Church of Australia, the Methodist Church of Australasia and the Congregational Union of Australia. The Northern Synod covers a region that includes Darwin extending to Broome in Western Australia, Gove in the Northern Territory, and Pitjantjara lands in South Australia. Archives under the control of the Uniting Church in Australia include records of the predecessor churches.

Obtaining access to Uniting Church records

Permission is required from the Uniting Church to access their archives which are less than 30 years old.

Once the records are wholly within the open period, i.e. completely over 30 years old, they are available for public access to researchers registered with the NTAS.

It is common, however, for records controlled by the Uniting Church to span the open and closed periods and therefore if there is any doubt as to the date range of an item permission must be sought prior to access.

To apply for permission the researcher needs to write to the address provided below, stating the purpose of their research, and including a list of the series and items that they wish to access. Item listing for each series are available through the NTAS.

Uniting Church in Australia

Once authorisation has been granted the Uniting Church will contact the researcher and the NTAS. The researcher should then contact NTAS to arrange a time to visit the reading room and view the records.

Please note that Uniting Church records can also be found at the State Reference Library of NSW (Mitchell Library), the National Library of Australia, and the National Film and Sound Archive.

Further information

The NTAS holds many other records relating to missions and churches. Please visit the NTAS website and search the collection using the List of Holdings. You may also use Archives Navigator, the online access point to NTAS archival management system: <https://dtsc.nt.gov.au/arts-and-museums/northern-territory-archives-service/about-ntas>. Please note that not all NTAS records have been listed in Navigator.

The NTAS oral history collection is rich in recollections relating to the missions and all church denominations. These archives can be identified using online Oral History To search the oral history online index go to: <http://oralhistory.nt.gov.au>.

For other sources of information visit the churches' websites.
